Minister In Tears As He Tells Of How Wife Failed To Heed Plea To Remain

Dies After Operation In London

Mr. Justice Ford Grants Recess To Enable Hon. O. L. McPherson to Recover His Control—Denies He Promised to Provide for Wife's Support

By J. S. COWPER

The spectacle of a Cabinet Minister in tears on the witness stand as he told of how his wife had resisted his pleadings and had left him home for ever in a taxi with her luggage, was witnessed in the Supreme Court this morning when Hon. O. L. McPherson was detailing the story of collusion told by his ex-wife.

At one stage Mr. Justice Ford granted a recess to enable the Minister to recover his control, and on resuming his counsel S. B. Woods K.C., exhorted him to exercise restraint and fortitude.

Mattern Ordered Taxi

From this stage on, the Minister went on to tell how his wife on Jan. 19, 1931, went away in a taxi ordered by Capt. Roy Mattern from the Minister's home.

"I heard her phone the baggage man," he said "and I made a final appeal to her, I begged her to reconsider her decision to go away and drop the whole idea. She was determined to continue. In the evening she arranged to send out one boy. Two of the others had gone to the hockey game. She telephoned for Roy Mattern to come. He came along with Helen Mattern. He carried her bags downstairs and phoned for a taxi."

"I Kissed Her Good-bye"

"Before she left my wife came to the door of the sitting room to say 'Goodbye' to me. I got up and met her at the door and spoke to her. I asked her again not to do it, but she said she was going through with it. I kissed her goodbye and returned to the chesterfield to sit down."

Hon. Mr. McPherson said that during the time Roy Mattern was helping his wife with her baggage and her preparations to leave his home, Mrs. Mattern was sitting with him in the sitting room near the fire. He said that Mrs. Mattern told his wife when she was going away that she was mad to do so and would regret it.

"Don't Believe It—Yet"—Helen

Said he: "When Cora said 'I'm going' Helen replied 'I don't believe it, yet.'"

Hon. Mr. McPherson denied that he had promised his wife before she left that he would send her money for her support. On the contrary he said he had told her that if she left she would have to "shift for herself, and take the consequences."

Only "Tolerated" Mattern

The witness had previously explained that he had tolerated Capt. Mattern round the house because after talking the situation over with Roy Mattern, he had become persuaded that to take any drastic steps would provoke his wife to extreme measures.

Friendship Was Resumed

After that, he said, his wife phoned up Mattern and they resumed their friendship.

An interesting episode occurred while the witness was in the box. He had denied a number of serious accusations made against him by his sister-in-law, Mrs. Lucille McPherson, in her commission of evidence.

HELEN MATTHEW ENTERS FLAT WITH NEGATIVES

Defendant Takes Role of Outraged Husband, Shocked at Wife's Infidelity but Still Anxious to Keep Home Intact—Election Tours in Auto Explained to Court.

By J. S. COWPER

The picture of a loving husband, shocked at hearing of his wife's confession of infidelity with his friend, but still loving and pleading till hope faded, then urging his wife to defer her departure from his home until after the general election—this was the picture of himself that Hon. O. L. McPherson, Minister of Public Works, held before the court yesterday to explain why he took his wife and Mrs. Helen Matthews with him in his car on election tours, after his wife had allegedly confessed to having committed adultery with Capt. Roy Matten.

The Minister said that it was on his wife's importunity, not at his own desire, that he had taken Mrs. Matten on the trips, saying that he was not going to leave her alone with him, and in order to retain her company and pursue his efforts to try and win back her affections from Captain Matten, he had been obliged to accede to his wife's stipulation that Mrs. Matten accompany them.

Following this denial of the ex-wife's story that she had been compelled by her husband to accompany him and Mrs. Matten to protect her reputation, the Minister gave a general denial to practically every charge that the ex-wife had made to support her suit for the annulling of their marriage on the ground of fraud and collusion.

Same Bedroom Denied

He denied that he had occupied the same bedroom as Mrs. Matten on the trips, and he denied that he had insisted on Mrs. Matten accompanying them on a trip to Victoria.

He denied that he and Mrs. Matten would take threats and physical force to compel Mrs. Matten to go with him to make the confession of adultery which she now retracts.

He denied that he had occupied the same bed with Mrs. Matten on several occasions during the stay at Victoria.

He denied that he had connived or consented to Capt. Matten visiting his wife, or his wife visiting Capt. Matten, after he had received the confession from Mrs. McPherson.

He denied that he had been in the Victoria flat, during the election trips, that he was on terms of friendship or intimacy with Mrs. Matten.

Denies She Chose Car

He denied that the government car he used to take his wife and Mrs. Matten to Great Falls, Montana, was selected by Mrs. Matten or purchased specially for use on the trip.

Earlier in the day he had denied that he had induced his former wife to go to Saskatoon to furnish "hotel evidence" for his divorce, or that he had promised her $75 a month.

Instead he said that he had been driven into a frantic state of jealousy by his wife's actions with Roy Matten.

He said that he was made ill by her conduct, and that he and two women went three in a drawing-room car to the coast, because of his health and at the request of his wife and Mrs. Matten.

He said that his wife refused to go on the trip to Victoria or on the motor trips Mrs. Matten came with them.

He said that at Victoria and on the motor trips he had always slept alone, and the two ladies had slept together.

He said that he had never heard the story that he and Mrs. Matten used force to compel his wife to make a confession, until he heard it that day in court—and gave emphatic denial to it.

He declared that until after his wife had left him—allegedly for love of Matten—he had been devotedly attached to her. He said that he had been so devoted to her that he had been willing to give up his position and his home, and to follow her to the coast, because of his health and at the request of his wife and Mrs. Matten.

Told Election Coming

He explained the circumstance of his wife staying on at his home and accompanying him and Mrs. Matten on motor trips, after he had received the Victoria confession of adultery from her, by saying that she had returned from Victoria on April 20, 1930. He had been appointed to the position in the Cabinet that an election was to be held in the province in June.

"I had been told from several sources that I was not to be opposed," said the Minister, "but I owed a duty to my party at election time. I did not want her to leave home at that time. Cora agreed not to leave home or bring the issue to a crisis until after the election. She insisted in return that she was to be free to see Roy Matten as much as she wished, indicating that she would leave my home if interfered with."

"I was left with the two alternatives. On the one hand I could insist on her recognizing her duty and obligation to her home and to myself, and refuse to let her see him any more and thus break the peace of my home; or I could leave it to the passage of time in the hope that she would not continue to insist on the course she had napped out."

When court adjourned in the evening, Hon. McPherson was still on the stand.

He has yet to face cross-examination on his evidence at the hands of Neil D. Maclean, K.C. During the Minister's evidence there were some supplementary explanations from the public and the Minister.

He was asked to explain the circumstances of the public denials that he would have the court cleared unless absolute silence was kept. Said his Lordship:

"Things may have happened many times in this case, but it is for me, not for the public to judge."
